ABOUT THE YOUTH EXCHANGE

The Youth Exchange Back to the Roots, which will take place in Črnomelj, Slovenia, will consist of 36 participants and group leaders aged between 18 and 30 years. The exchange will take place in October 2018. This year is the year of European Cultural Heritage, which is one of the main reasons why we want to carry out this exchange. Through it we want young people, living in age of hyperglobalization, to draw attention to the importance of a rich cultural heritage. In this context we want to show them how certain historical events influenced the way of living and shaped the culture and ethnicity of the local environment. We are faced with younger generations not being familiar with the importance of cultural heritage, which due to globalization is disappearing from our consciousness. Through the exchange we want to present the cultural features of our environment and learn how to preserve these specialties and how to successfully promote them as an important factor in the tourist offer. During the exchange we want to create a small brochure that will be used by local tourist centres for promotion. This will include information about the history, tradition, customs and tourist points of the Uskoki.

This small municipality has around 8000 habitants, surrounded by a special types of trees called Bela breza (Betula pendula) along with the river Kolpa, which makes this town great place to visit in summer, where are many camps, where you can explore nature and her attractions, do a lot of sport activities (swimming, diving, canoeing, cycling, climbing..), or visit some of music festivals.

On the other side, Bela krajina is known as wine region, where is a lot of farmers producing their own protected wine, what is making this region even more richer in cultural and traditional aspect.
