SUMMARY

Climate change is becoming a major problem worldwide and one of the most debated topics in the last decade. In general, the whole planet is getting warmer with data that are increasingly alarming and also at the political level it is a highly discussed topic and without a precise directive.

The project was born in response to these needs; in fact, we strongly believe that bringing together ideas and experiences from different contexts and cultures will help to understand the problem from a global point of view and to contribute to fulfilling our objectives.

The overall objective of this youth exchange is to emphasize the relevance and to increase awareness of climate change and desertification issues by motivating young people to introduce and share sustainable practices. Participants have already expressed the need to gain the knowledge and practices regarding the topic of desertification and climate change and the willingness of getting involved to make their own contribution.

So, in line with the new priorities identified by the Erasmus+ Programme, the specific objectives are divided into 3 main perspectives (personal, collective and practical level) and are the following:

- to raise awareness, stimulate the reflection/sharing of ideas and encourage the debate about the problem of desertification and climate change by promoting activities aimed at acquiring knowledge and living a unique experience on the field.

ACTIVITIES AND METHODS

Working Methods

The activities will take place in Tozeur og Djerba Tunisia, with the opportunity of visiting different oasis and canyon in the deep Sahara, and will be based exclusively on non-formal education methods using techniques like simulations, role play, games, discussions and other interactive exercises which will actively involve every pax, so they can go through their own experience and make their own conclusion on the topic. In particular, the timetable is designed to follow the three main lines of actions described in the previous paragraph pursuing a specific route: the first day will start with icebreakers and name games to get to know each other and starting creating the group. Then, the hosting organization and the group leaders will present themselves and the main useful information for the success of the project: in particular, how the timetable is organized, the safety rules, where to find a first aid kit, emergency numbers etc. The following sessions are dedicated to the definition by pax of the own rules for the week and, using non formal methods and a game, participants will share in group their fears, expectations and what motivated them to be part of the project with the aim of adapting the exchange path to the participants' needs; through role-play they will explore the “Erasmus+ Youth in action” Programme to understand what makes this project available and start learning how to present it to their peers in a local school. This session is also dedicated to the Youth pass certificate and key competencies and to the creation of a kind of diary where pax can save the activities or their notes with the aim of having a place where they can reflect on the daily learning outcome.

Who can participate in the youth exchange?

Target group of this project includes NGO activists, young youth workers, youth leaders, volunteers, young social workers interested in development of their local communities. The selection was done in organizations based on the overall interest of young people in the topic of active citizenship and community building. Some young people were pre-selected straight away during the first discussion of the project idea by UK, Turkey, Lithuania and Tunisia partner organizations during the preparation phase of the project.

Each partner organization will send 10 participants (8 participants and 2 group leaders), because there will be 10 participants from each country, and 2 group leaders will be able to manage the group effectively.

Of course, we understand that by the time the project is organized some young people's conditions or motivation may change and the group will need to be altered; in which case the selection will be done through questionnaire (which we will provide to our partner organizations) and motivation letter which we will ask the partner organizations to process and choose the most motivated candidates and those ones who will benefit the most in participating in case of necessity.

The age of the participants ranges from 15 till 30.
